Hudson's Bay and Puget Sound Agricultural Company vs United States

The amount claimed in this case is four millions nine hundred and ninety thousand thirty six dollars and sixty seven cents, or, nine hundred and eighty five thousand three hundred and fifty pounds sterling, in gold coin

I now have before me, including the Hudson's Bay Company's Memorial eleven hundred and twenty six pages of printed documents and depositions relating to this case I also have what may properly be termed British testimony, bearing directly upon this case, and is entitled to its full weight in a proper and a just decision as to the amount of compensation this Hudson's Bay Company are entitled to receive from our Government.

REVIEW PROPOSED

I do not propose to review all this one thousand four hundred and nineteen pages of statements and depositions in detail, that would be too tedious, though I might be able to make it interesting to the general reader, as it develops the whole history of that portion of our continent that has for one hundred and ninety seven years been under the exclusive jurisdiction of a monopoly that effectually closed it to all outside influences up to the year A D 1854

ORIGINAL STOCK OF THE COMPANY.

According to our British testimony it was originally £10,500 In 1690, in consequence of the enormous profits upon this small capital, it was increased three fold, calling it £31,500 In 1720 it was declared to be £91,500 In this year the stock was (as is termed) watered The then proprietors, each subscribed £100, and received £300 of stock, calling the whole nominal stock £478,000, while the actual subscription was but £94,500, and only £3,150 was paid The stock was ordered to receive at £100,500, while the actual total amount paid was but £11 050

In 1821 there was another "watering" of the stock, and a call of £100 per share on the proprietors, which raised their capital to £200,000 The Northwest Fur Company joined the Hudson's Bay Company in this year, and the joint stock was declared to be £400,000

We are ready to admit, in fact the testimony in the case goes to prove, that the French Northwest Company brought into the concern an equal amount of capital with that of the Hudson's Bay Company This would give the present Hudson's Bay Company a real capital of £27,000, a nominal capital of £400,000

THE MEMORIAL AMOUNT CLAIMED

By reference to the memorial of the Company, we find they claim on the 8th of April, 1867, of our Government

For the right to trade, of which, by the settlement of the country and removal of Indians to reservations, has deprived them of £200,000

For the right of the free navigation of the Columbia river, £300,000

For their forts, farms, posts and establishments, with the buildings and improvements, £285 350, making in all £785,350, or $3,822,016 67, or £330, 150 more than the whole amount of nominal stock which they claim to have invested in their entire trade

We will not stop to speak of the morality of this claim, it is made in due form, and this with the claim as set forth in the same document, to wit For lands, farms, forts and improvements, £100,000, loss of live stock and other losses, £50,000, total, £240,000—equal to $1 185,000, to be paid in gold. In British money these two sums amount to £1,025,350 sterling, in American dollars to $4,990,030 67, or £525 350 sterling money more than their nominal stock, and £998,050 sterling more than all their real stock invested.

PART OF THE POSTS STILL RETAINED.

It will be remembered that this demand is simply on account of the settlement of Oregon by the Americans A part of the posts for which this demand is made are still in their undisputed possession, and a large portion of the claim is set up in consequence of the loss of the profits of the fur trade, of that portion of their business so conducted in territory that originally belonged to the United States, and was actually given up to them by the treaty of December 24th, 1814

The reader will bear in mind, that in the review or discussion of this Hudson's Bay Company's claim on our government, we only refer to that part of their trade, and the rights or privileges they were permitted to enjoy, jointly with Americans, in what is now absolutely American territory Over two thirds of their capital has always been employed in territory that the American has not been permitted to enter, much less to trade, and form a settlement of any kind.

THE WITNESSES

On the part of the Hudson's Bay Company have been forty-one in number Of this number fifteen are directly interested in the results of the award Fourteen were brought to the country by, and remained in the service of the Company till they left the country and were all British, though some of them have become naturalized American citizens Twelve are American citizens, and are supposed to have no particular interest in the results of the case, in fact, their statements are all of a general and very indefinite character Having come to the country since 1850, they know but little or nothing about the Hudson's Bay Company, its rights, policy, or interests in it. Not one of them appears, from the testimony given, to understand the justness of the Company's claim, or the injustice there would be, in allowing any part of it. Their testimony appears to be given under the impression that because the treaty stipulated that the possessory rights of the company were acknowledged, and to be respected that therefore full payment must be paid the Company for the right of trade, and the prospective profits in trade, and the increased value of assessable property for an indefinite period in the future As for example, a witness is asked

"What is the present value per acre, of the Company's claims at Cowlitz and Nesqually, for farming and grazing purposes?"

Answer—"Supposing both claims to belong to the same person or company having a clear and undisputed title, and perfectly exempt from molestation in the transaction of business, I think the Cowlitz claim worth to day, thirty dollars an acre, and the Nesqually claim five dollars an acre, for farming and grazing purposes"

The fifteen interested witnesses all testify to about the same thing, asserting positively as to the real value of the Company's supposed rights One of the chief factors, in answer to the interrogatory, "State the value of the post at Vancouver, as well in 1846, as since, until the year 1867, give the value of the lands, and of the buildings separately and state also what was the value of the post in relation to the other posts, and as a centre of trade?"

It being the general depot for the trade of the Company west of the Rocky Mountains, "In 1846 the establishment at Vancouver, with its out buildings, was in thorough order, having been lately rebuilt, taking into account this post," (a notorious fact that but two snow build ings were about the establishment and in decent repair) "together with the various improvements at the mill on the mill plain, on the lower plain, and at Saawiks' Island, I should estimate its value no less to the Company at from five to six hundred thousand dollars"

THE VALUE OF THE LAND

Used by the Company, at Fort Vancouver, in 1846, say containing a frontage of twenty five miles on the Columbia, by ten miles in depth, in all two hundred and fifty square miles, or about one hundred and sixty thousand acres, I should calculate as being worth then, on an average of from two and a half to three dollars an acre," (at $2 50 would give us $400,000,) this, with the improvements say $500,000, gives us, at this witness's lowest estimate $900,000, for the Company's possessory rights

AT VANCOUVER ALONE.

This witness goes into an argument stating surrounding and probable events, and concludes in these words, "I am clearly of opinion that had the company entire control to deal with it as their own, without any question as to their title, from the year 1846, and up to 1858, when I left there, taking the fort as a centre point, the land above and below it, to the extent of three square miles, or 1,920 acres, with portage on the Columbia river, could have been easily disposed of for $250 per acre ($480,000) The remainder of the land claim of the company at Vancouver is more or less valuable, according to its locality, thus I consider the land on the lower plain, having portage on the river for a distance of five miles, or three thousand two hundred acres, as worth one hundred dollars per acre ($320,000) Below that again, to the Cathlapotl, a distance of probably ten miles, with a depth of two miles, or twelve thousand eight hundred acres, is worth twenty five dollars an acre ($320,000) Going above the Fort Plain, and so on to the commencement of the claim, two miles above the sawmill on the Columbia river, say a distance of six or seven miles and back three miles, or about thirteen thousand five hundred acres, should be worth from ten to fifteen dollars per acre ($135,000 at $10, his lowest estimate) The remainder of the claim is worth from one and a half to three dollars per acre" It being 128 560 acres at $1 50 per acre, $192,580 This would make for the Vancouver property, as claimed, and several witnesses have sworn to the value to amount to as per

SUMMARY OF A CHIEF FACTOR'S TESTIMONY.

For the fort, buildings, farm and mill improvements		$500,000
For 1 920 acres of land about the fort, at $200 per acre		400,000
For 2,250 acres below the fort, at $100 per acre.		220,000
" 12 800 " on lower plain $25 " "		320,000
" 13 000 " above the sawmill $10 " "		130,000
" 128 580 " balance of claim, $1 50 " "		192,580

This gives us the sum of one million nine hundred and forty seven thousand five hundred and eighty dollars in gold coin, as the value of the possessory rights of the Honorable the Hudson's Bay Company to Fort Vancouver and its immediate surroundings

This chief factor's oath and estimate of the property is sustained by the estimates and oaths of three other chief factors, amounting to about the same sum. This one, after answering in writing, as appears in his cross examination, to twenty sworn questions affirming to the facts and truth of his knowledge of the claims and business of the company, &c., says, in answer to cross interrogatory by the counsel for the United States (Interrogatory 477) "Can you not answer the last interrogatory more definitely?" The 476 interrogatory was "Have you not as much knowledge of what the company claimed in this direction as any other?" The answer to the 477th interrogatory is "Referring to my answer to the last interrogatory, it will be at once seen, that I have no personal knowledge as to what land the company actually claimed on that line or any other, as regards the land in the neighborhood of Fort Vancouver. This answer embraces all on the present time"

AMERICAN WITNESSES.

There are several American witnesses introduced to prove this monstrous claim of this company, to show the reasonableness and the justness of their demand. I will give a specimen of an answer given by one of them After estimating the amount of land in a similar manner to the witness above referred to, calculating the land in four divisions, at $50, $10 and $1 25 per acre and 161,000 acres amounting to $789 625 without any estimate upon the buildings or improvements, the following question was put to him, "Have you any knowledge of the market value of land in the vicinity of Vancouver, at any time since 1860?"

Answer "I only heard of one sale, which was near the Military Reserve, I think this was of one hundred acres and I understand brought one hundred dollars an acre I heard of this within the last few months, but nothing was said that I remember about the time when the sale was made"

From the intelligence and official position of this American witness we are forced to the conclusion, that the enriching effects of the old Hudson Bay rum must have made him feel both wealthy and peculiarly generous, as well as liberal in estimating the possessory rights of his liberal Hudson's Bay Company friends

TOTAL IGNORANCE OF HUDSON'S BAY COMPANY'S WITNESSES.

There is one noticeable fact in relation to quite a number of the witnesses called, and that have testified in behalf of the company's claim, it is their ignorance, we may add, total ignorance of the general business, profits and policy of the company This remark will apply to every witness whose deposition has been taken, including their book keepers and clerks in London, and their Chief Factors in Oregon Doctor McLaughlin seems to have been the only man upon this coast that knew, or that could give, an intelligent account of its policy or its proceedings

The whole Hudson's Bay Company concern appears like a great barrel, tub, or box of goods, put up in London and every retail caterer a certain district, servants and clerks sent along with the bales and boxes and barrels of rum, to gather up all the furs and valuable skins they can find all over the vast country they occupy, then bale up these furs and skins and send them to London, when another set of clerks sell them and distribute the profits on the sale of the furs.

As to the value of the soil, timber, minerals, or any improvements they have ever seen or made in the country, they are as ignorant as the savages of the country they have been trading with. This ignorance is real or wilful The oaths of the two witnesses to which I have referred, show this fact beyond a doubt, they having been the longest in the service and attained a high position and should know the most of its business and policy.

ANOTHER AMERICAN WITNESS.

There is one other American witness that has given his testimony in the case of Puget Sound Agricultural Company vs United States He came to this country in 1855 In cross interrogatory 55 he is asked "In your opinion, did not the agents of this company afford a great protection to the first settlers of this section of country, by the exercise of their influence over the different Indian tribes?"

Ans—"In my opinion the officers of the Company, being gentlemen & gentlemen, have always exerted whatever influence they might have had with the Indians to protect the whites of all nations in the early settlement of the country"

This opinion as expressed by a gentleman having no knowledge of the policy and proceedings of the Company in relation to all American settlers, previous to his arrival in the country. He concludes that because he in his official transactions, having no occasion to ask or receive the Company's protection, and being treated kindly, all others must have been, as the Company's officers were, in his opinion, 'educated gentlemen."

AMERICAN TESTIMONY.

In answer to this last official American gentleman and his officious opinion as expressed on oath in the case, I will quote a statement, under oath, of one of an old bed rock settlers who came on to the west side of the Rocky mountains in 1829, twenty four years previous to the last witness who pretends to know so much.

Int 7—"What influence did the Hudson's Bay Company exercise over the Indians in the section where you operated, with reference to the American trappers and traders? state such facts as occur to you in

The Apple Tree in the Lane.

It stood close by where, on the leather hinge,
The gate swung back from the grassy lane,
When the cows came home when the dusky eve
Its mantel threw over hill and plain;
Its branches, knotty and gnarled by time,
Waved to and fro in the idle breeze,
When the spring days wore a blushing crown
Of blossoms bright for the apple trees.

Its shadows fell o'er the crystal stream
That all the long, bright summer days,
Like a silver thread, 'mid the waving grass
Reflected back the golden rays
Of the noonday sun that madly strove
To drink the font of the brooklet dry;
But the light clouds showered tear-drops down
Till the glad brook laughed as it glided by

Nurse were apples half so sweet—
Gold-n russets, striped with red—
As those that fell on the yielding turf
When she shook the branches overhead.
A trysting place for our youthful friends
Was the apple tree in the days of yore,
And oft we sat beneath its shade
And talked bright dreams of the future o'er.

And when the warm October sun
Shone on the apples' scarlet robe,
We gathered apples round and fair,
And round as our own mystic globe.
The stately hemlock crowns the hill,
The dark pines rise above the plain—
But the one we prize far more than they
Is the apple tree in the pasture lane.

Long years have passed, and cows no more
Come home at night through the grassy lane,
Where the gate swung back on the leathern hinge
I stand and gaze on the far off plain.
No more we list to the music low
Of the crystal stream as it ripples on,
And the apple tree in the pasture lane
Is but a dream of the days by-gone.

On the Trail.

I am a police superintendent in a large iron-making town, and for upwards of twenty years have had the care of a populous colliery district. The peculiar avocations of the people supply ample disguise for criminals in hiding. Who would look for a runaway clerk in the blank face and coal-stained garments of a collier, or in the guise of a laborer in the iron shed? It may be assumed, therefore, that many a strange incident has come under my notice in the course of so long a service, and some of these I may occasionally present to the public. One in particular I remember well, as practically illustrating a remark made in the Times on the conviction of Muller, that crimes of a conspicuous character are generally committed by the class that is the least suspected. I was once one evening to suppress a disturbance between several colliers and a party of Irishmen. The colliers, it appears, maddened with drink, had assailed the latter, driving them into a dwelling and would have speedily killed one or more, had not the opportune arrival of the police. The night afterwards, I received a note from the railway authorities that a coal-train had been thrown off the line by some miscreant or other, who had placed sleepers along the rails. Knowing that colliers were working at a distance invariably return by these trains, and remembering the struggle of the night before, I at once concluded this to be an attempt at Irish revenge, and pursued my investigations accordingly.

A few nights after, another coal train was thrown off the rails, as in the former case, however, without harm to the men; but this second attempt spurred me on, so that certain suspected persons were specially in custody. But I soon found out that these were not "my men." It is useless for me to expatiate on the unerring signs by which innocence invariably asserts itself. The true men were violent men in their cups, but manifestly incapable of the atrocious act of which they were accused.

Nearly half a week passed when the whole neighborhood was filled with horror. At a distance of twelve miles from the town where I live, there was another town, to which our tradesmen resorted as neighbors every Wednesday to market. In the evening, the last train, as usual, bore its burden of passengers to their homes. It was summer time, and merrily they dashed along the rugged banks of a mountain river, winding in amongst the hills. But soon the picture was changed; turning a sharp bend in full career, the engines left the rails and the long drop into the embankment, rolled over. Unfortunately having continued just a mile or so in progress to break the shock of the descent. There was an awful cry of lamentation, and madly, a hurried scene: men and women seeking to clamber through the opening of the locked doors, too intent on their personal safety to think of anything else. Most of the inmates were frightened. While a few engineers rushed to the nearest station, others scampered off by the route for the cause of mishap. It was soon found. The scene of the accident was a deep cutting, and the rail nearest the river had been forcibly removed. This miscreant—for it was certain that a villain's hand had been there—had fortunately been ignorant of the train he had taken up the rail by the portion for it was omitted to mention that there was a steep incline at this point—and naturally thought that the train, with its load of human life, would have rolled over. The rail next to the river was [illegible] soon, and so the engine simply plunged along towards the scarp of the mountain.

When the details of his lucky escape reached me, I felt that my life was at stake. This was evidently a New [illegible] of the diabolical attempts of the [illegible]. The first inquiry made was Who [illegible] the train? and one or two questions of this import. I said, that the driver of the [illegible] train at the time the tracks were [illegible] was one and the same person [illegible] the driver," said I, and marched to my lodgings. I found him a quiet, inoffensive sort of fellow, not a likely man to have a mortal enemy. He was unmarried, and spent much of his time on the line, not having been in the position very long. We at once [illegible] on the subject of the accident, but I found him quite at sea as to the cause.

"Have you an enemy," said I, "or any one who entertains any malice against you?"

"No one that I know of."

"You are unmarried, I believe?"

"Yes he was.

"Courting perhaps?" I suggested.

He confessed to the soft impeachment.

"Have you any objection to tell me who the lady is?" inquired I, for we police officers are sometimes obligated to override delicate scruples. He mentioned the name of a young woman residing at a farmhouse six miles down the valley, and within half a mile of the scene of the accident. I drew a long breath, but kept my own counsel.

"Oh, so the damsel lives there, does she? Now has she any other sweethearts besides yourself?"

He thought there had been one, a carpenter; but, quoth the driver, complacently smoothing an incipient beard: "She has no lover now but me."

Where does this carpenter live?"

About a half a mile from the farm," he answered; and with that I left fully satisfied now that I was on the trail.

The morning after, and at the scene of the accident. I had found a large thick stake, cut, evidently from the adjoining wood. This had been used to pry up the rail from the sleeper. Examining it minutely, I saw that it had been cut recently, and that with a knotched knife.

So, with this idea uppermost, I started on the mission, and after a pleasant drive, reached the little hamlet where the carpenter lived. This district was very mountainous and rugged; and as I mounted the winding road towards the house, I could hear the monotone of the river near which so narrow an escape had taken place. Yonder was the scene. Was the criminal near? The door was soon opened to my knock, and by the carpenter himself, a cool, self-possessed young man, who seemed to read my errand in a moment, yet asked me what I wanted, without the change of a muscle. I entered into his little room, and told him I had a suspicion he could enlighten me on the cause of the railway accident.

No, he couldn't; he had heard of it like the rest.

Would he allow me to search him?

Certainly; and forthwith various articles were in my hand. On his person I found two pocket-knives, each of which would have served to cut the stake. As I passed a moment, and held them in my hand, he heedlessly observed: "That knife," (pointing to one) "I only put in my pocket this morning, as I generally keep it at home. I opened the knife; the blade was notched; and looking up from the article to the carpenter, caught his eye. We know one another's thoughts in an instant; but he accompanied me tranquilly enough to the town. At the trial, the knife figured in evidence; various corroborating matters satisfied the jury of his guilt; he was found guilty, and sentenced to seven years' transportation. It turned out afterwards that he loved the farm-girl, and was incited by jealousy to the act which so nearly caused so frightful an accident. For all I know, the driver still dwells in single blessedness, for the maid is still a maid, as rosy-cheeked as ever, and, it is said, is waiting for the carpenter's return!

There are some who write, talk and think so much about virtue, morality, and other attributes, that they have no time at all to practice any of them.

A female seminary was recently started in Salt Lake City, which succeeded very well until the principal eloped with and married the whole school.

Beware of inquisitive persons; a wonderful curiosity to know all, is generally accompanied with as great an itch to tell it again.

Gossip about Writers.

[From the New York Evening Gazette.]

THEODORE TILTON.

Tilton is one of the brightest and most intelligent young men in New York. He has talent, energy, education, and that peculiar quality which has no better name than readiness. He impresses us as a man who had made up his mind in boyhood to lead a pure life, to be talked about, and to be praised in the children's biographies of a coming generation. His love of moral principle and reform championship is just as much a pas sion with him as Forrest's love of the drama, A. Johnson's love of office, Walt Whitman's love of poetry, or the nameless Bohemian's love of liquor, tobacco smoke, and non-payment of his debts. Such a man has no temptation to fall into evil courses; the bite he lends is his summum bonum of life. If he could not talk his peculiar views through the Independent or at popular movement meetings, Tilton would be as unhappy as a taper deprived of his bottle.

A few years ago Tilton used to be capable of being much annoyed if any one treated him as a young man. But this feeling has worn away. Now always his boyish appearance is a source of satisfaction to him, and he encourages it. He wears his light hued hair long, shaves every day, affects light hued clothing, and looks even younger than he is. His tall, shapely figure and intelligent face are very pleasant to look upon.

Tilton is one of the very few literary men of the metropolis who were born here, having first seen the light October 2, 1835, in Groonwich street, almost within a stone's throw of the spot where the Independent now stands. He was a member of the first phonographic class formed in this country, reporting for the Tribune before he left college. The first case he reported was the famous Forrest divorce. One of his accomplishments was to report and write out, alone, at one sitting, the Burdell-Cunningham bogus baby case, as it was called, filling six and a half columns of solid agate in the Tribune. His report of one of William Curtis Noyes' speeches for the Tribune, during the Kansas Nebraska excitement, that gentleman declared the most correct he had ever known. He also reported the great Day India-rubber case at Trenton, N. J., on which Choate and Webster were employed on opposite sides. He says he remembers how extremely dignified Webster was on the occasion, standing quietly behind the table and merely waving the air with one hand, while Choate moved up and down the floor in an excited manner, and at one time, in his nervous gesticulation, striking the pencil out of Tilton's fingers.

Tilton joined Henry Ward Beecher's church when he was fifteen, and soon became a favorite and a kind of protege of the Plymouth pastor. Though they have since had serious differences of opinion in politics, they have always been warm and steadfast friends, and were never more so than at this day.

After reporting for two years for the Tribune, Tilton entered the Independent office in 1856 as an assistant editor. A few years subsequent, when Beecher became the editor-in-chief, Tilton remained there in his former capacity, though much of the time he practically filled the position of his senior. After Beecher's return from Europe he retired from the Independent, on the ground that his editorial duties were irksome and conflicted with his other duties, though his protege always thought it was mainly for the purpose of giving him the place.

When he entered the Independent office first, Tilton was always seeking to perpetrate sensations in the editorial columns, and his gravor associates found it necessary to hold him in, like a spirited colt; now, though as fond of sensation and double leaded leaders as ever, he is the leading horse of the editorial tandem team, whose other steeds are Oliver Johnson and Rev. Joshua Leavitt, D. D. They find it in vain to try to hold him now; he goes where he will, and as far as he will, and if they don't step lively enough for him, their only alternative is to be hauled along, nolens volens.

The first effort that gave him anything like a national reputation was his speech at Plymouth Church, January 25, 1860, against making the American Board the depository of contributions for foreign missions, because it was a league for slavery—Beecher opposing him, but giving him the highest praise for his compact and eloquent argument. His address on "The Negro," at the anniversary of the Anti-Slavery Society at the Cooper Institute, in 1860, created a sensation, and from some remarks about the "history of the world being written in one word—amalgamation," it was declared he was in favor a blending of the black and white races. This provoked all manner of comment and criticism throughout the country, and gave the jesters of the World and Round Table an opportunity to concoct that spurious pamphlet favoring miscegenation, and of introducing a new word into the language. Tilton was introduced to the anti-slavery platform by Wendell Phillips, at the Assembly Rooms in this city, in 1838, in one of the most graceful and eloquent efforts of the silver-tongued orator.

As a poet he is very well known, his "Great Bell Roland" published at the time of the firing on Sumter, and his "True Church," being his most famous productions. He has published several children's books in prose and verse, "The Fly," "The Two hungry Kittens," and "Golden Hair Gertie," and a little volume entitled, "The King's Ring."

Modesty never yet stood in Theodore Tilton's way. He has hosts of admirers throughout the country, but none of them think better of him than Theodore Tilton does.

Tilton resides in Brooklyn near Beecher's Church, owning a very comfortable and pleasant residence in Livingston street, which is said to contain more engravings, mostly artists' proofs, than any other residence in that city. His dwelling and its contents cost him about $250,000, and as his salary on the Independent is $6,000, and his income from lectures and other sources considerably more than that, he may be considered beyond lupine peril. Mrs. Tilton is a very plain, pleasant faced little lady, not so young looking as her husband and astonming him as the greatest man of the age—which is as it should be. Anna, his sister, is a tall, good looking girl, just out of boarding school, said to be possessed of very fine talent and sharing Mrs. Tilton's faith as regards Theodore—which is also as it should be. They are a very happy, lively, intellectual family, always full of joyous little outcroprisas of one kind or another and very popular socially.

Tilton is not, as many suppose him, a rampant politician, having never held an office of any kind, and being a man of purely literary and artistic tastes, who prefers his closet and his library to all political conventions and caucuses. He spends most of his leisure at his house, is very fond of children, and quiet and domestic in his tastes, though he enjoys congenial society, for which his perfect good nature and fine flow of spirits, his bright conversation and abundant humor particularly qualify him. He is exceedingly genial, a great favorite in social circles, and has a long list of friends who appreciate him to the fullest.

PERRY DAVIS' PAIN KILLER.

Travelers are always liable to sudden attacks of dysentery and cholera morbus, and those occurring when absent from home are very unpleasant. PERRY DAVIS' VEGETABLE PAIN KILLER may always be relied upon in such cases. As soon as you feel the symptoms, take one teaspoonful in a gill of new milk and molasses, and a gill of hot water. Stir well together and drink hot. Repeat the dose every hour until relieved. If the pains be severe, bathe the bowels and back with the medicine, clear.

Fishermen, so often exposed to hurts by having their skin pierced with hooks and fins of fish, can be much relieved by bathing with a little Pain Killer as soon as the accident occurs; in this way the anguish is soon abated; bathe as often as once to five minutes, say three or four times, and you will seldom have any trouble. PORTLAND, August 10, 1867.

I was at Mr. Wegner's store on Saturday, August 10th, and seeing the magic effect of J. G. My wrist was so swelled I could not shut my fingers. I believe it will cure any pain in a short time. I will give any further particulars to whoever calls on me.

Tumor Removed!

PORTLAND, August 10th, 1867.

I HAVE USED RENNICK'S SITKA LINIMENT for pain and swelling of the gum and cheek. I had a large tumor forming on the gum which arose from killing the nerve in my tooth and caused me a dreadful pain which prevented me from sleep for several nights. I applied the Liniment, and to my surprise, it removed the lump and eased the pain so that it is now as well as the other cheek. My cheek was fearfully swollen. This was done in the presence of two witnesses.

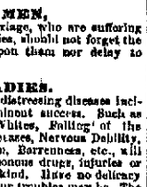
NEW REMEDIES, NEW REMEDIES

Dr. Gibbon's Dispensary,



616 KEARNEY STREET, NEAR COMMERCIAL, San Francisco. Established in 1854, for the treatment of Sexual and Seminal Diseases, such as Gonorrhœa, Gleet, Stricture, Syphilis in all its forms, Seminal Weakness, Impotency, etc. Skin Diseases (of years standing) and Ulcerated Legs successfully treated.

Horrible Diseases.

How many thousands of persons, both male and female, are there who are suffering out a miserable existence from the effects of secret indulgences, or from virus absorbed into the system! Look at their pallid, emaciated and disfigured faces and their broken-down constitutions, disqualifying them for the happiness of marriage or the enjoyment of life. In this horrid situation thousands wander until death closes the scene. Let parents, guardians, friends, attend to those who are suffering with any of these horrible life-destroying maladies—see that they are cured and cured before it be too late. Send them immediately to Doctor Gibbon, a physician who has made private diseases his especial study for years, and who is certain to cure the most inveterate cases without mercury or any injurious drugs. It is important to those who are afflicted, or to those who are interested in the welfare of their friends, to be cured of the many pretended doctors who infest all cities, publishing their skill in curing all diseases in a few days, imposing upon the public by using the names of eminent physicians from Europe and other places. Be therefore careful and make strict inquiry, or you may fall into the hands of those charlatans.

Seminal Weakness.

Seminal Emissions, the consequence of self-abuse. This solitary vice, or depraved sexual indulgence, is practiced by the youth of both sexes to an almost unlimited extent, producing, with unerring certainty, the following train of morbid symptoms, unless combatted by scientific medical assistance, viz: Sallow countenance, dark spots under the eyes, pain in the head, ringing in the ears, noise like the rustling of leaves and rattling of chariots, weakness about the loins, weakness of the limbs, confused vision, blunted intellect, loss of confidence, diffidence in approaching strangers, a dislike to form new acquaintances, a disposition to shun society, loss of memory, hectic flushes, pimples and various eruptions about the face, furred tongue, foul breath, coughs, consumption, night sweats, monomania and frequent insanity. If relief be not obtained, should apply immediately, either in person or by letter, and have a cure effected by his new and scientific mode of treating this disease, which never fails of effecting a quick and radical cure. Dr. G. will give One Hundred Dollars to any person who will prove satisfactorily to him that he was cured of this complaint by either of the San Francisco quacks.

MARRIED MEN,

Or those who contemplate marriage, who are suffering under any of these deplorable maladies, should not forget the sacred responsibility resting upon them nor delay to obtain immediate relief.

TO THE LADIES.

The various complicated and distressing diseases incident to females, treated with eminent success. Such as Suppressions, Irregularities, Whites, Falling of the Womb, Tumors, all Urinary Diseases, Nervous Debility, Painful or Difficult Menstruation, Barrenness, etc., will be speedily cured, without poisonous drugs, injuries or unpalatable medicines of any kind. Have no delicacy in calling, no difference what your troubles may be. The afflicted are cordially invited to call and satisfy themselves.

Persons calling at Dr. Gibbon's office or sending for packages of medicines may rely upon his assurances of confidential secrecy with implicit faith, and expect no more than to be charged with a fair, and mutually satisfactory remuneration for services rendered, considering the circumstances and difficulties of cases, rather than a too prevalent and loathsome practice of extortion among quacks and pretenders.

DOCTOR GIBBON is responsible, and will give to each patient a written instrument, binding himself to effect a radical and permanent cure, or make no charge.

CURED AT HOME.

Persons at a distance may be CURED AT HOME, by addressing a letter to Dr. Gibbon, stating case, symptoms, length of time the disease has continued, and have medicines promptly forwarded, free from damage and curiosity, to any part of the country, with full and plain directions for use, for Ten Dollars, sent in registered letter or through Wells, Fargo & Co.

Address DR. J. F. GIBBON, 616 Kearney street, corner Commercial, San Francisco. Post Office Box 252.

Still Making a Record.

Just before the close of the late special session of Congress, resolutions were introduced authorizing an investigation by a special committee of the conspiracy which resulted in the assassination of President Lincoln. The resolutions became the subject of considerable discussion, and were much modified before they were finally adopted. Having at length been brought into such a shape as seemed best calculated to secure the end in view, they were put on their passage and carried by a strict party vote, every Democrat present voting against their adoption, and thus putting their party on the record as opposing and trying to prevent any investigation of the conspiracy which deprived the nation of its Chief Magistrate. It will be remembered that the orators of that party have for two years been talking of the great mystery of President Lincoln's assassination, have declared that those who were executed for the crime were entirely innocent and have asserted that there was no evidence in the case to justify any suspicions against rebel leaders or to give probable reason for believing that the crime was incited by any person or persons having a connection with the rebellion. Much investigation has been heard because a clear investigation has not been had; yet as soon as it is proposed to make such an inquiry, those who have been carping on the subject try to defeat the investigation. They do not want the circumstances examined and the facts sifted and made public, fearing a doubt that certain persons who were recently high in authority and power at Richmond may be criminated. What other motive could they have for opposing investigation? None other is apparent. But whatever the motive was they are on the record as having tried through their representatives in Congress to prevent an inquiry into the facts connected with the assassination.

This is one point in that party's recent record. It will be remembered in such also places it will be an enviable light before the country. When Mr. [illegible] introduced a bureau bill to [illegible] the doctrine avowed by the Executive of the United States in his message [illegible] the abrogation of the rebel States [illegible] to pay their debts in arrest [illegible] is at war with the principles of [illegible] law, a deliberate stab at the material [illegible] sent to every sentiment of party and well [illegible] only to the rankest and basest [illegible] by alone the basest elements of [illegible] overthrow and [illegible] was carried by a strict party vote [illegible] Democratic members the whole number [illegible] the House, [illegible] that party [illegible] DIX, declaring that the Government [illegible] for the debts of the States [illegible] of course the Copperheads will [illegible] the Government to pay those debts [illegible] in Congress only answers the [illegible] which have often been made against [illegible] High taxes would not be [illegible] if the "Radicals" now [illegible] debt of paying the debts of the rebel [illegible] were contained in the [illegible] party.

Deeply Dejected

Dorris, so the telegraph informs us, [illegible] the utmost concern about the [illegible] all the newspapers in the interest of the [illegible] official semi-official and [illegible] a signal state of anxiety on he same subject, that the Democracy will hereafter [illegible] ly in the South is not a cheering [illegible] — and all the full moons and [illegible] ally despondent. The Democracy [illegible] tells an ugly story and the returns [illegible] to other places presage equally [illegible] A majority of colored voters in [illegible] other things look decidedly unpromising [illegible] the "voting race." Immediately [illegible] in Tennessee became known, Judge [illegible] took the alarm and issued a manifesto [illegible] V— to his "Conservative friends" [illegible] was imminent, and "Conservatives" [illegible] were advised to take the initiative before [illegible] Radical blacks from employment [illegible] able that the "gentlemen of property" [illegible] 22 be entrusted by Radical negroes [illegible] If the said niggers will only [illegible] the Democratic ticket equal privileges will [illegible] be had an idea after all [illegible] of the corpulence of their party we [illegible] editors of Oregon [illegible] they [illegible] y is an equal state [illegible] and equally ready to suggest [illegible] emergency.

At this critical moment Henry A. Wise [illegible] his trumpet. The masses of the North are [illegible] by this doughty hand [illegible] save the Union of the South from the [illegible] mination [illegible] rose. Whose the last type Impudence, equal rights [illegible] less leveller, [illegible] first families are in danger [illegible] being [illegible] How this warning appeal from [illegible] fire and Wise [illegible] the feeble, [illegible] response from their seats at the North who have always known [illegible] men as their [illegible].

The distress of these individuals is heightened by the fact that the [illegible] a very cheerful one for the Radicals. This is the remark of one [illegible] Oregon journals [illegible] not disposed to [illegible] its correctness. [illegible] subject is observed for the "Radicals" [illegible] as bitter for [illegible] Dear [illegible] as Ham et a wormwood or Iago's [illegible]. The individuals," we are happy to say, are quite comfortable. In fact they are rather enjoying the situation. It did not pain them during the war to bear of victories won with the aid of arms carried by black men; nor does it pain them now to hear of victories in the same manner by the aid of ballots deposited by colored voters. The probability is that the "Radicals" will carry every Southern State; and as they are sure of nearly every Northern State, they have good reason to be tolerably well satisfied. The Democracy have Kentucky and Delaware, and we give them joy of the possession. But though they confess they are in desperate straits they do not say what they are going to do about it. Possibly they are waiting for more explicit orders from Jefferson Davis, which may soon [illegible] in the shape of a proclamation under his hand from the Dominion of Canada.

"A Bourbon among us" takes great pride in the fact that he has traveled, that he has lived in Wisconsin, California and elsewhere. By and by when Sartell sets up as a Democratic editor he will boast of having traveled to Italy and Egypt; also of having visited Washington.

Ben Harding, of Polk county, says he did not write for reinforcements from Union county.—There is nothing strange in the denial. Who expected him to make a confession? But owing to the unfortunate reputation Mr. Hayden has somehow got for being rather unscrupulous in the means he employs for electioneering purposes, there are very few persons in this State who will change their opinion because of anything he may say on the premises. We have no doubt but Polk county will require a great deal of imported stock to make it go Copperhead at the next election, and Mr. Hayden knows it; which uncomfortable knowledge renders it very probable that he has been early about for aid. If we rightly understand the temper of the people of Polk county, the game [illegible] thing; votes in that county will [illegible] business in the future, and [illegible] interest [illegible] matter.—

[DISPATCHES TO THE OREGONIAN.]

DATES TO AUGUST 27.

Washington News.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23.—It is not true that there has been any formal resignation of the Cabinet. The Intelligencer evidently founded its statement on the fact that all the members of the Cabinet have repeatedly intimated to the President that they are ready to retire when he desires.

It is probable that the Dominican Republic has sent a messenger to Washington to treat for the sale of Samana, but he has not arrived.

Rosseau, in a letter to General Grant, pronounces as false Sheridan's charges that he interfered with his administration. Rosseau says that in reply to a telegram from Washington, inquiring how things looked, he did say that affairs looked gloomy and that the people were much depressed, and that any change would almost be universally accepted. This dispatch referred to matters and things in general, including Sheridan, though the latter's name was not mentioned. He claims the right in common with all other citizens, to criticise Sheridan's political administration, yet he scrupulously refrained from doing so during his recent visit to his district. He did not express any opinion regarding his policy in the district.

NEW YORK, Aug. 20.—The libel suit of the rebel officer, Cummins, against the proprietors of the Herald has been dismissed.

John Savage has accepted the position of Chief Organizer of the Fenian Brotherhood, and he is expected to effect a union of the two wings.

The Post's special says the President has issued an order assigning Hancock to Sheridan's place.

The Express' special states that the State Department has been notified through its agents that Gen. Prim, the Spanish revolutionist, if successful, will offer Cuba to our Government at a price to be fixed by a mixed commission. To keep England a passive spectator, Cuba will be pledged to repay the British bondholders.

CHICAGO, Aug. 27.—The Times' special says that the official order issued assigning Canby to Sickles' command, takes effect immediately. Grant is directed to make future disposition of Sickles. The official order assigning Hancock to Sheridan's command, directs the latter to Fort Leavenworth, and not come to Washington. The order permits Hancock to annul or repeal any act of Sheridan's administration he thinks proper, without reference to Grant's recent order, assigning Thomas that command, which is still in force. Thomas remains in command of his present department.

The President furnished a copy of his correspondence with General Grant to the New York Herald, exclusively, as a compliment for that journal's recent somersault in his favor, and refused even to allow it to appear in the Intelligencer.

A dissolution of the Cabinet is close at hand. McCulloch and Randall have informed the President that they would immediately retire if desired. The President made no definite answer. It is believed that he would not accept McCulloch's resignation. The other members will probably go out from time to time, as their successors are determined upon. Stanberry still remains.

Glorious Words from Grant.

CHICAGO, Aug. 27.—Grant, in reply to the President, earnestly urges, in the name of a patriotic people who sacrificed millions of treasure to preserve the Union, that the order removing Sheridan shall not be isolated upon. It is the unmistakably expressed wish of the country that Sheridan should not be removed from his present command. This is a Republic where the will of the people is the law, and he begs their voices may be heard. Sheridan has performed his civil duties faithfully and intelligently, and his removal will be regarded as an effort to defeat the laws of Congress, and will be interpreted as a triumph for the unreconstructed element in the South, and will embolden them to new opposition to the loyal masses, believing they have the Executive with them. Grant says Thomas has repeatedly protested against being assigned to either of the Southern Departments, and his services entitle him to consideration. Hancock ought not to be removed. His Department has constituted one and would take a new commander some time to become acquainted with it.

The President replies, thanking Grant for his prompt in submitting his views. He says he is not conscious of no question of removing Sheridan has ever been submitted to the people for determination, and it would be unjust to the Army to assume that he alone is capable of commanding the 5th Department. He speaks in terms of Gen. Thomas as an old and tried officer, of great ability, sound discretion and sterling patriotism. The affairs of Gen. Sheridan's District are in a disturbed condition and bitter spirit of antagonism [illegible] from Gen Sheridan's management. He has [illegible] himself exceedingly obnoxious by the manner [illegible] he has exceeded his authority granted by Congress, and still more so by resort to authority not granted [illegible] He has in fact has been one of absolute tyranny [illegible] reference to the principles of our Government [illegible] re of our free institutions. His course has seriously interfered with the harmonious and satisfactory [illegible] of the laws of Congress, and that act alone is a sufficient justify a change. His removal cannot be regarded as an effort to defeat the laws of Congress, for the [illegible] facilitate their execution through an officer [illegible] willing to obey the law or to exact obedience [illegible] thereto. The more change of commanders cannot [illegible] Thomas and General Thomas will be as much [illegible] by the acquiescence as General Phil. Sheridan [illegible] Thomas is the people to removed opposition to [illegible] the masses, believing that they have the [illegible] them, for they are perfectly familiar [illegible] with the late. The President knows he has not [illegible] to third execution of any act of Congress, [illegible] Thomas and Hancock, and feels certain [illegible] suitable for Indian warfare for the district [illegible] energy and enterprise which gave him an [illegible] reputation in the late struggle. He says being [illegible] Chief of the Army and Navy, and being [illegible] his duty to preserve, protect and defend the [illegible] he has issued an order for the change of [illegible] Fifth District, regarding it as absolutely necessary for the execution of the law. He tells [illegible] him, that he did not, from the first, consider him the most suitable man for that command, [illegible] has strengthened his conviction on this point. [illegible] supercedes him by an officer who, while [illegible] by observing the law, will give a cheering satisfaction to the people white and black, both North and [illegible]

BERLIN, Aug. 26.—The preliminaries for a meeting between the King of Prussia and the sovereigns of the United States, has been agreed upon, and Baden is named as the place where the conference will be held.

MARSEILLES, Aug. 26.—The Intelligence, from Candia, says that while a Prussian steamer was taking aboard refugees from the Cretan coast, the commander of a Turkish man-of-war forbade further embarkation. The Prussian refused to desist and both vessels ran out their guns and prepared to fight. Omar Pacha, who was in the vicinity at the time, interfered and prevented an engagement.

LONDON, Aug. 26.—The reports of troubles in Spain are conflicting and unreliable. Unofficial dispatches from Madrid maintain that the rising was put down, and the insurrection ended. Advices from the insurgents themselves maintain that the movement against the Government is gaining strength daily.

PARIS, Aug. 26.—Velpau, the eminent surgeon, is dead.

The abolition congress, composed of the leading anti-slavery men of the world, commenced its session to-day. A large number of Americans are present, and many representatives of the African race. OUR SAN FRANCISCO DISPATCH.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 26.—Saturday evening the ship Blackwall was towed into the side of Vallejo street wharf and about 50 stevedores were set at work yesterday morning discharging her cargo. Most of that taken out, and which is being removed to-day, is in a damaged condition. Many of the sacks were burned, others wet, and a large quantity of wheat was lying loose in the hold. It seems the cargo was not as extensively injured as was at first feared. She was insured in Boston for $80,000.

It is understood that Mr. Houston, the contractor for the first section of the sea-wall, will commence operations sometime during the present week.

At about half past eleven o'clock Saturday night the Odeum, a one story frame building, on Dolores street, near the old Mission Church, was discovered to be on fire, before the firemen could arrive on the ground the entire building was consumed. The Odeum has been for a long time, and was originally designed to be, a place of resort for Germans. It combined the attractions of ball-room, beer garden, &c. The building was owned by Siegfried & Co., and was insured for $4,000.

About one o'clock this morning, as we are informed by Bamber & Co's express, and other sources, a destructive fire broke out in the stable adjoining the Warm Springs Hotel, Alameda county, and before assistance could be rendered the whole building, comprising stable, coach house, shed, etc., was a mass of flames. The fire was the heat at one time that it required a strong effort to prevent the fire from communicating with two of the lodging houses. Eleven horses perished in the flames, amongst which were a fast team belonging to Keogh & Baker, and another fine team to T. Brooks, both of this city. Mr. Liston, proprietor of the stage line between Hayward's and the Springs, lost four horses and harness but saved the coach in a damaged condition. A number of horses and buggies belonging to guests were burned. But for the trees growing so thick between the stable and hotel, the whole improvements would have been lost. Bernard McCloskey was sleeping in a portion of the outbuilding at the time, and so rapidly did the flames spread, that he was unable to escape until he got badly burned about the head and feet. Messrs. Hamilton & Redding, the lessees of the house, state their loss to be about $5,000, on which they had no insurance whatever.

About noon to-day, a little boy named Jas. Money, aged about ten years, went swimming in a pond on Geary street, and was drowned.

The wheat from the ship Blackwall, which was damaged by fire and water, on Saturday morning, will be sold at auction to-morrow.

Money Market.

Gold—In New York, at 11 A. M., to-day, gold was 139¾; sterling 109⅝.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 27.—There was a large gathering at Platt's Hall last night to hear Mr. Haight and other speakers.

About 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon, an accident occurred at Hathaway's wharf, by which Wm. Driscoll was injured so that life was despaired of, and Capt. Wm Pierce seriously injured. Capt. Pierce was on board the bark Chalmett, and desiring to go down into the hold, called for a ladder; Mr. Driscoll brought it, and was in the act of placing it in position, when Capt. Pierce stepped upon it and fell. The ladder knocked Driscoll down the after hatch, and Capt. Pierce fell also. He was found unconscious and conveyed to his residence. His collar bone and several of his ribs were broken. It was found that Mr. Driscoll's spine was seriously injured. He was taken to the hospital. The physicians stated that there was a bare possibility that he might survive his injuries.

Yesterday afternoon, a man named Fred Omar, was thrown from his buggy and received such injuries that his death resulted from them last evening. He was a native of Prussia, aged 62 years.

The Sancelito Steam Tug Co. have brought suit against the ship Blackwall, for rescue salvage for services of the steam tug Gleach in saving the Blackwall from burning on the night of the 24th of August.

About 5 o'clock last evening the body of a little boy, James Kenny, drowned yesterday, was found. Men were engaged dredging for it all the afternoon.

J. F. Dupratt has commenced suit in the 12th District Court against James Lick, to recover $50,000 damages.

Plaintiff alleges that defendant tore up and carried away the sidewalk in front of his store, leaving a portion of the sidewalk without a support, that plaintiff, on passing the place stepped on the end of the sidewalk and was precipitated about eight feet below and received injuries such as to deprive him for life of the use of his right arm.

Suits have been commenced in the Fourth District Court against Erwin Davis for alleged breach of contract as follows: By Thomas Bell, to recover $30,000 on contract for sale of certain shares of the Savage Mining Company's stock; by George B. Winslow, $1,800 on breaching contract for the sale of certain stock of the said Company; Charles Vincent for $24,000, same cause of action; James Brown, $10,000, same cause of action. Wilson & Cuttenden are attorneys for the Plaintiffs.

A large number of shipowners assembled at the captains' room, in the new Merchants' Exchange, last evening, to take into consideration the wrongs and abuses which have grown up in this city in connection with sailors, landlords and the hinderances and obstructions which are put in the way of the shipping interests of the port.

The North Pacific Railroad.

The Walla Walla Statesman publishes the following letter:

BURLINGTON, VERMONT, July 28, 1867.

PHILIP RITZ, ESQ.:—I am in receipt of yours of June 18th, and am much obliged for the information therein contained, as well as the article upon the statistics of the country on the North Pacific Line, which I shall have republished in our papers, regarding them as a valuable contribution to the history of that section, which now is now so little known in the East. You will have seen from the papers ere this, that we have taken into our Board, the Presidents of the Pennsylvania, Pittsburg and Fort Wayne, Chicago and North Western, Erie and New York Central Railroads, which make it one of the strongest on this continent, in ability and railroad experience. Our engineers are now surveying from Lake Superior to the Red River, and Gen. James Tilton, who was Surveyor General of Washington Territory, has gone to Puget Sound to make an examination of the mountain passes. The opponents of our line, assert that we cannot get over the Cascade Mountains, and hence it becomes important, before Congress meets, to demonstrate beyond a doubt the practicability of such an operation. We shall do nothing towards locating any line this season, but it is all important for us to have all the information we can about the mountain passes, but of the Cascades and Rocky ranges, in order that we may rebut any statements which our enemies may make. Therefore, all that our friends can do on the Pacific coast to throw light upon the subject, should be done, and sent forward soon; before Congress meets. The first thing is to get a grant from Congress, the same as the other line has, and all our efforts at present are directed to getting such information as will satisfy Congress of the importance and necessity of aid for the North Pacific route.

Yours, &c., THOS. A. CANFIELD,
General Agent North Pacific Railroad.

PIONEER WASHER.

E. G. BOLTER,

AGENT FOR OREGON AND WASHINGTON TERRITORY.

THIS CELEBRATED WASHING MACHINE IS now for the first time introduced to the Oregon public. It is unrivalled for its simplicity, durability and the rapidity and ease of its action. Washing the dirtiest clothes perfectly clean in from five to ten minutes, with but slight labor, and lasting, with proper care, for ten years. The wear and tear of clothing in washing by this machine is vastly less than by any other known process of washing. It does its work by a reverse motion in forcing the water through the clothes.

By having a tight cover, the steam thus assists materially in cleansing the clothes, and also avoids the inhaling of steam from hot suds.

This Machine captured the Special Premium at the California State Fair, and all that have used it pronounce it an invaluable adjunct to old housekeepers and families and washing men and washing women.

It has been extensively introduced throughout the State of California, and receives the universal commendation of all who have used it.

THE COUNTY RIGHTS, now unsold, will be sold at a bargain if applied for soon.

OREGON STATE FAIR.—We have received from E. M. Waite, of Salem, Printer for the State Agricultural Society, a copy of the immense posters for the approaching fair. From it we learn that the society offers cash premiums to the aggregate amount of $2,000. The following new rules have been adopted by the society

"All articles entered for premium must be arranged without the name of the exhibitor, and all stock is subject to the same rule. Superintendents are requested to instruct committees to examine articles and animals without inquiry as to owner.

"No stock of an inferior quality will be allowed to occupy the society's buildings, and all such found therein, will be removed by the Marshal.

"Every machine or implement offered for premium, must be so described as to identify it to future purchasers.

"No article or animal entered for premium can be removed or taken away, without special permission, before the close of the exhibition."

Nearly five hundred dollars are offered in premiums on poultry, and the premiums on swine are more liberal than heretofore. There are considerable premiums offered on domestic woolen goods. The other premiums offered are embraced in the departments of mechanic arts, manufactures, agriculture, horticulture, trials of speed, etc. The trials of speed will be conducted this year on a new plan. Each horse will go singly and against the time of the first horse starting. The prices of admission to the Fair grounds will be as follows: Membership ticket, with privilege of voting, $3 00; season ticket for gentlemen, $1 50; single or day ticket, $1 00; ladies, and children under twelve, free. The Society will furnish straw for bedding and hay for fodder, free, from the time the animal is entered till the close of the fair.

AN ARTISTIC SKETCH.—Most city readers will remember a case of fast driving on our streets some time ago, in which a millionaire and a distinguished army officer figured. The case had so much of the ludicrous in it that it excited at the time a good deal of jocular remark, and a gentleman who is something of an artist, made a sketch of the street scene. We have often heard of the photographs of this sketch, but were never fortunate enough to obtain one till yesterday. To understand the sketch fully it is necessary to know that the officer had some time before been fined $5 and costs for fast driving. The foreground of the sketch shows the two gentlemen in an apparently intoxicated state of mind, seated in a buggy, the millionaire driving a pair of fast horses while the officer holds him steady with both arms around him. The officer is made to say, "Hayward, by George, you will get fined $5 and costs!" The millionaire replies, "I'll pay it, General! Go long Sam! only $5 and costs!" On a corner which the team has just passed stands a decided toper-looking fellow who sings out, "Hi! wish he'd run over me, life! git $1,000,000 damage!" Another spectator cries, "Time, 2:12!" and still another exclaims, "Ethan Allen's swarving made nowhere!" There is a police officer standing quietly looking on and near him a buxom looking washerwoman who expresses the opinion, that as the driver is a rich man, the policeman dare not arrest him. The whole sketch is entitled, "A quiet ride in the country." It is very neatly done in pencil sketch, and Mr. Buchtel has made excellent photograph copies of it.

A GOOD ROAD.—Among other works of public improvement, our attention has been called to the fact that the road leading from the Bulton House toward Boone's ferry, has, this season, been reclaimed from a condition which made it the dread of teamsters and converted into as good a piece of road as there is in the county, the McAdamized road alone excepted. Of course, only a part of this road has been thus improved, for the reason that the public road funds have not been sufficient to improve all the road over the mountain. A gentleman who passed over the road a few days since, in talking with us yesterday, represented the work done as excellent and worthy of public mention. He thought the expenditure of money had been more judicious than in many instance within his knowledge, where the supervisor was simply looking out for public interests. The supervisor of this district is Mr. John Stephenson.

PUFFERY.—The P. C. Advocate complains that many of its exchanges are printed altogether with leaded type; that selected matter is not credited, and that it is, therefore, impossible to distinguish original from selected matter. The editor suggests that, "if selected articles were set solid and editorials only leaded, one should be free from such embarrassment." We add to that suggestion that, if the newspaper puffers could only be converted to the common honesty of giving credit for their borrowed articles, the difficulty would be entirely avoided. Leaded matter in editorial columns does not always indicate that the articles are original. We could mention a number of instances in this State where articles have been clipped from one paper and used in another as leading editorials. This practice is abominably mean and disreputable and ought to be discontinued by every editor who has any regard whatever for fairness and honesty.

Portland, Aug. 27th, 1867
W. S. LADD, Treasurer.

THE MARSHALSHIP.—A new suit was begun yesterday against Mr. Hoyt, to compel him to deliver to Mr. Rosenheim the property pertaining to the office of Marshal. The proceeding was the same as in that which was abandoned last week. We learn that during the day stipulations between the parties were agreed to, to the effect that the plaintiff would again ask for a dismissal for the purpose of commencing proceedings by quo warranto, and that in case of an appeal to the Supreme Court, neither party would make objection to time, but would allow the matter to come up and be disposed of at the next term of the Supreme Court. The matter will be heard before Judge Shattuck to-day, if he is not otherwise engaged.

RECORDER'S COURT.—In the Recorder's Court, yesterday morning, a man named Winters, from the country, was tried on a charge preferred by J. J. Moss, of peddling chickens within the city limits, without having a city license. The defendant pleaded not guilty, and exhibited as evidence, a Federal license. The Recorder could not see that this sort of license answered the demand of the city ordinance, and he fined the defendant a nominal sum, amounting with costs, to about ten dollars.

THANKS.—We are under obligations to Mr. L. W. Folsom for a copy of "The Pioneer's Offering," by Henry H. Woodward, of Coos county, Oregon. This is the first volume of native Oregon poetry ever published, and we prize it. We have read it and we do not hesitate to say that neither Byron nor Shakspeare, nor any of those old poetry fellers could ever have written such a book. It will be read extensively when they are all forgotten—but probably not before.

CHANGE OF PROPRIETOR.—As will be noticed by advertisement this morning, the agency for the Pioneer Washer, has been transferred from Mr. James Brazie, to Mr. E. G. Baker. The latter gentleman makes a splendid broom and we can see no reason why he should not succeed quite as well with this still more important domestic necessity. The agency includes Oregon and Washington Territory.

IMPROVEMENT OF THE RIVER.—Mr. Asa McCully, President of the P. T. Co., and Capt. Kellogg, started yesterday morning from Oregon City with the steamer Echo, up the river, for the purpose of clearing out a couple of bars between Salem and Albany. All the bad places below Salem have already been improved so as to admit the passage of the boats without difficulty.

U. S. CIRCUIT COURT.—Judge Deady, yesterday, learned by telegraph from Judge Field, one of the Justices of the Supreme Court of the United States, that he will leave San Francisco for Portland, on the 7th of September, for the purpose of holding a term of the U. S. Circuit Court for this district. All cases on error and appeal are set for September 13th.

HOT DAY.—Yesterday was another scorcher. The thermometer stood at 99 to 100 in the shade. Everybody complained as lustily as the sultry languor of the weather would permit, and iced drinks were in demand. Who knows but that the weather may have been affected by the late reduction of 6,000 feet in the height of Mount Hood!

EXECUTOR'S SALE.—At 12 o'clock to-day, Mr A. B. Richmond, Auctioneer, will sell for the executor of the estate of Wm. A. Ebluger, several lots in block 87, Caruther's Addition to the city of Portland. The sale will take place at the Courthouse door. The property to be offered is said to be desirable.

MACHINERY FROM OREGON IRON.—Mr. David Monnastes, yesterday, received a couple of tons of Oswego pig iron which he proposes to cast into machinery, and have it running before the close of this week. Thus it will very soon be decided what are the qualities of Oregon iron for machinery.

ACCIDENT TO THE U. S. GRANT.—When the Ranger came up yesterday, she found the Grant aground about three miles below St Helens. She had broken some of her machinery and was attempting to sail up when she ran aground. The Ranger brought up her passengers.

WILLAMETTE FREIGHTS.—Arrived per steamer Senator, from Oregon City, yesterday: 925 pk sks flour, 6 bales woolen goods, 9 sewing machines, 20 boxes apples, 10 boxes plums, 4,600 lbs pig iron to Willamette Iron Works, and 2,300 lbs do, to David Monnastes

THE NEXT STEAMER.—The steamship Montana, Capt Wm Metzger, sailed from San Francisco for Portland at ten o'clock yesterday forenoon. The Montana had been up for Honolulu, but the Idaho has been substituted for her and will sail Sept. 15th.

A SPAN WANTED.—We call attention to the advertisement of Mr. W. H Shaw, who wants to employ several good agents for the sale of the Illustrated works, "The American Conflict" and "The Domestic Bible"

FURNITURE SALE.—There will be a sale of some fine furniture at 10 o'clock this morning at the sales rooms of Mr. A. B. Richardson, Auctioneer.

INCORPORATED.—Samaritan Lodge No. 2, I. O. O. F. of this city has lately been incorporated under the laws of the State.

TREASURY RECEIPTS.—Wells, Fargo & Co. received by the boat, yesterday, $16,000 in treasure from the Upper Columbia.

STATE ITEMS.

We learn from the Unionist that W. A. McPherson, State Printer, will start on a visit to Washington City in a few weeks.

The total delinquent tax of Linn county, as reported by the clerk of that county, is $12,586 80. Of this sum, $6,091 28 became delinquent prior to July 6th, 1866, and the sum of $5 884 52 since that date.

The following appointments were made during the present month by Hon. Samuel L. May, acting Governor: F. N. Shurtleff P. B. county Notary Public, John Carey, Umatilla county, Notary Public, William T. Scott, New York city, Commissioner of Deeds for Oregon, J. Lewis, San Francisco, Commissioner of Deeds for Oregon.

The Corvallis Gazette says: Articles of incorporation have during the past week, been filed in the County Clerk's office, and also with the Secretary of State, by Messrs Richard Irvine, F. B. Odeneal, John Kelsay, F. A. Chenoweth, M. Wise, Stephen Belmett, Dr. Graham, Charles Gaylord, A. Hodgate, R. G. Simmons, Hiram Fleckinger, Wm Fleckinger, Jeff Fox and M. Jacobs, for a railroad from Corvallis to Yaquina Bay.

The Apple Tree in the Lane.

It stood close by where, on the leather hinge,
The gate swung back from the grassy lane,
When the cows came home when the dusky eve
Its mantel threw over hill and plain;
Its branches, knotty and gnarled by time,
Waved to and fro in the idle breeze,
When the spring days wove a blushing crown
Of blossoms bright for the apple trees.

Its shadows fell o'er the crystal stream
That all the long, bright summer days,
Like a silver thread, 'mid the waving grass
Reflected back the golden rays
Of the noonday sun that madly strove
To drink the font of the boodet dry;
But the light clouds showered tear drops down
Till the glad brook laughed as it glided by

Nowse were apples half so sweet—
Golden russets striped with red—
As those that fell on the yielding turf
When she shook the branches overhead
A trysting place for our youthful friends
Was the apple tree in the days of yore,
And oft we sat beneath its shade
And talked bright dreams of the future o'er.

And when the warm October sun
Shone on the apples' scarlet robe,
We gathered apples round and fair,
And round as ere own mystic globe.
The stately hemlock crowns the hill,
The dark pines rise above the plain—
But the one we prize far more than they
Is the apple tree in the pasture lane.

Long years have passed, and cows no more
Come home at night through the grassy lane,
Where the gate swung back on the leathern hinge
I stand and gaze on the far off plain.
No more we list to the music low
Of the crystal stream as it ripples on,
And the apple tree in the pasture lane
Is but a dream of the days bygone

On the Trail.

I am a police superintendent in a large iron-making town, and for upwards of twenty years have had the care of a populous colliery district. The peculiar avocations of the people supply ample disguise for criminals in hiding. Who would look at a runaway clerk in the black face and coal-stained garments of a collier, or in the guise of a laborer in the iron shed? It may be assumed, therefore, that many a strange incident has come under my notice in the course of so long a service, and some of these I may occasionally present to the public. One in particular I remember well, as practically illustrating a remark made in the dock on the conviction of Muller, that crimes of a conspicuous character are generally committed by the class that is the least suspected. I was on duty one evening to suppress a disturbance between several colliers and a party of Irishmen. The colliers, it appears, maddened with drink, had assailed the latter, driving them into a dwelling, and would have speedily killed one or more, but for the opportune arrival of the police. The night afterwards, I received a note from the railway authorities that a coal-train had been thrown off the line by some miscreant or other, who had placed sleepers along the rails. Knowing that colliers working at a distance invariably return by these trains, and remembering the struggle of the night before, I at once concluded this to be an attempt at Irish revenge, and pursued my investigations accordingly.

A few nights after, another coal train was thrown off the rails, as in the former case, however, without harm to the men; but this second attempt spurred me on, so that certain suspected persons were speedily in custody. But I soon found out that these were not "my men." It is useless for me to expatiate on the unerring signs by which innocence invariably asserts itself. The Irishmen were violent men in their cups, but were certainly incapable of the atrocious act of which they were accused.

Nearly half a week passed when the whole neighborhood was filled with horror. At a distance of twelve miles from the town where I live, there was another town, to which our tradesmen resorted in numbers every Wednesday to market. In the evening, the last train, as usual, bore its numerous passengers to their homes. It was summer time, and merrily they dashed along the rugged banks of a mountain river, winding in amongst the hills. At noon the picture was changed; turning a curve in full career, the engines left the rails and plunged deep into the embankment, rolled over, fortunately having continued just a sufficient time in progress to break the shock of the fall. There was an awful cry of lamentation; and shortly, a hurried scene: men and women rushing to clamber through the opening and to extricate the wounded doors, too intent on personal safety to think of anything else. Most were bruised and all were terrified. While the engineer hastened to the nearest station, the guard remaining on the route for the cause of mishap. It was soon found. The scene of the accident was a deep cutting, and the rail nearest the river had been forcibly removed. This miscreant deed—for it was clear that a villain's hand had been there—had fortunately been ignorant of engineering. He had taken up the rail by the engine for I have omitted to mention that there was a steep gradient at this point—and naturally thought that the train, with its load of human life, would turn over. The rail next to the river was the one, and so the engine simply plunged straight along towards the scarp of the mountain.

When the horror of this lucky escape reached me, I felt that my reputation was at stake. This was evident a Nemesis in the shape of the diabolical attempt of the scoundrel. The first inquiry made was "Who drove the train?" and one or two questions of this import elicited the fact, that the driver of the train at the time of the accident was one and the same [illegible] "the driver," said I, and marched off to his lodgings. I found him a tall, handsome sort of fellow, not a likely man to have a mortal enemy. He was unmarried, and seemed much to his duties on the line, not having been in the position very long. We at once entered into the subject of the accident, but I found no clue quite at sea as to the cause.

Have you an enemy, sir," said I, "or any one who could have any malice against you?"

No," he thought not.

"You are unmarried, I believe?"

Yes," he was.

"Courting perhaps?" I suggested.

He demurred to the soft impeachment.

"Have you any objection to tell me who the lady is?" enquired I, for we police officers are sometimes obligated to override delicate scruples. He mentioned the name of a young woman residing at a farmhouse six miles down the valley, and within half a mile of the scene of the accident. I drew a long breath, but kept my own counsel.

"Ah, so the damsel lives there, does she? Now has she any other sweethearts besides yourself?"

He thought there had been one, a carpenter; but as to the driver, complacently smoothing an incipient beard: "She has no lover now but me."

"Where does this carpenter live?"

As not a half a mile from the farm," he answered; and with that I left fully satisfied now that I was on the trail.

The morning after, and at the scene of the accident I had found a large thick stake, cut, evidently from the adjoining wood. This had been used to pry up the rail from the sleeper. Examining it minutely, I saw that it had been cut recently, and that with a knotched knife.

So, with this idea uppermost, I started on the occasion, and after a pleasant drive, reached the little hamlet where the carpenter lived. This district was very mountainous and rugged; and as I mounted the winding road towards the house, I could hear the monotone of the river near which so narrow an escape had taken place. Yonder was the scene. Was the criminal near? The door was soon opened to my knock, and by the carpenter himself, a cool, self possessed young man, who seemed to read my errand in a moment, yet asked me what I wanted, without the change of a muscle. I entered into his little room, and told him I had a suspicion he could enlighten me on the cause of the railway accident.

No, he couldn't; he had heard of it like the rest.

Would he allow me to search him?

Certainly; and forthwith various articles were in my hand. On his person I found two pocket-knives, each of which would have served to cut the stake. As I paused a moment, and held them in my hand, he heedlessly observed: "That knife," (pointing to one) "I only put in my pocket this morning, as I generally keep it at home. I opened the knife; the blade was notched; and looking up from the article to the carpenter, caught his eye. We know one another's thoughts in an instant, but he accompanied me tranquilly enough to the town. At the trial, the knife figured in evidence; various corroborating matters satisfied the jury of his guilt; he was found guilty, and sentenced to seven years' transportation. It turned out afterwards that he loved the farm-girl, and was incited by jealousy to the act which so nearly caused an frightful an accident. For all I know, the driver still dwells in single blessedness, for the maid is still a maid, as rosy-cheeked as ever, and, it is said, is waiting for the carpenter's return!

There are some who write, talk and think so much about virtue, morality, and other attributes, that they have no time at all to practice any of them.

A female seminary was recently started in Salt Lake City, which succeeded very well until the principal eloped with and married the whole school.

Beware of inquisitive persons; a wonderful curiosity to know all, is generally accompanied with as great an itch to tell it again.

Gossip about Writers.

[From the New York Evening Gazette.]

THEODORE TILTON.

Tilton is one of the brightest and most intelligent young men in New York. He has talent, energy, education, and that peculiar quality which has no better name than readiness. He impresses us as a man who had made up his mind in boyhood to lead a pure life, to be talked about, and to be praised in the children's biographies of a coming generation. His love of moral principle and reform championship is just as much a passion with him as Forrest's love of the drama, A. Johnson's love of office, Walt Whitman's love of poetry, or the nameless Bohemian's love of liquor, tobacco smoke, and non-payment of his debts. Such a man has no temptation to fall into evil courses, the life he leads is his summum bonum of life. If he could not talk his peculiar views through the Independent or at popular movement meetings, Tilton would be as unhappy as a toper deprived of his bottle.

A few years ago Tilton used to be capable of being much annoyed if any one treated him as a young man. But this feeling has worn away. Now always his boyish appearance is a source of satisfaction to him, and he encourages it. He wears his light hued hair long, shaves every day, affects light hued clothing, and looks even younger than he is. His tall, shapely figure and intelligent face are very pleasant to look upon.

Tilton is one of the very few literary men of the metropolis who were born here, having first seen the light October 2, 1835, in Greenwich street, almost within a stone's throw of the spot where the Independent now stands. He was a member of the first phonographic class formed in this country, reporting for the Tribune before he left college. The first case he reported was the famous Forrest divorce. One of his accomplishments was to report and write out, alone, at one sitting, the forty-column Burdell-Cunningham bogus baby case, as it was called, filling six and a half columns of solid agate in the Tribune. His report of one of William Curtis Noyes' speeches for the Tribune, during the Kansas Nebraska excitement, that gentleman declared the most correct he had ever known. He also reported the great Day Indian-rubber case at Trenton, N. J., on which Choate and Webster were employed on opposite sides. He says he remembers how extremely dignified Webster was on the occasion, standing quietly behind the table and merely sawing the air with one hand, while Choate moved up and down the floor in an excited manner, and at one time, in his nervous gesticulation, striking the pencil out of Tilton's fingers.

Tilton joined Henry Ward Beecher's church when he was fifteen, and soon became a favorite and a kind of protege of the Plymouth pastor. Though they have since had serious differences of opinion in politics, they have always been warm and steadfast friends, and were never more so than at this day.

After reporting for two years for the Tribune, Tilton entered the Independent office in 1856 as an assistant editor. A few years subsequent, when Beecher became the editor-in-chief, Tilton remained there in his former capacity, though much of the time he practically filled the position of his senior. After Beecher's return from Europe he retired from the Independent, on the ground that his editorial duties were irksome and conflicted with his other duties, though his proteges always thought it was mainly for the purpose of giving him the place.

When he entered the Independent office first, Tilton was always seeking to perpetrate sensations in the editorial columns, and his graver associates found it necessary to hold him in, like a spirited colt; now, though as fond of sensation and double loaded leaders as ever, he is the leading horse of the editorial tandem team, whose other steeds are Oliver Johnson and Rev. Joshua Leavitt, D. D. They find it in vain to try to hold him now; he goes where he will, and as far as he will, and if they don't step lively enough for him, their only alternative is to be hauled along, nolens volens.

The first effort that gave him anything like a national reputation was his speech at Plymouth Church, January 25, 1860, against making the American Board the depository of contributions for foreign missions, because it was a league for slavery—Beecher opposing him, but giving him the highest praise for his compact and eloquent argument. His address on "The Negro," at the anniversary of the Anti-Slavery Society at the Cooper Institute, in 1860, created a sensation, and from some remarks about the "history of the world being written in one word—amalgamation," it was declared he was in favor a blending of the black and white races. This provoked all manner of comment and criticism throughout the country, and gave the jesters of the World and Round Table an opportunity to concoct that spurious pamphlet favoring miscegenation, and of introducing a new word into the language. Tilton was introduced to the anti-slavery platform by Wendell Phillips, at the Assembly Rooms in this city, in 1858, in one of the most graceful and eloquent efforts of the silver-tongued orator.

As a poet he is very well known, his "Great Bell Roland" published at the time of the firing of Sumter, and his "True Church," being his most famous productions. He has published several children's books in prose and verse, "The Fly," "The Two hungry Kittens," and "Golden Hair and Gerty to," and a little volume entitled, "The King's Rig."

Modesty never yet stood in Theodore Tilton's way. He has hosts of admirers throughout the country, but none of them think better of him than Theodore Tilton does.

Tilton resides in Brooklyn near Beecher's Church, owning a very comfortable and pleasant residence in Livingston street, which is said to contain more engravings, mostly artists' proofs, than any other residence in that city. His dwelling and its contents cost him about $250,000, and as his salary on the Independent is $5,000, and his income from lectures and other sources considerably more than that, he may be considered beyond lupine peril. Mrs. Tilton is a very plain, pleasant faced little lady, not so young looking as her husband and esteeming him as the greatest man of the age—which is as it should be. Anna, his sister, is a tall, good looking girl, just out of boarding school, said to be possessed of very fine talent and sharing Mrs. Tilton's faith as regards Theodore—which is also as it should be. They are a very happy, lively, intellectual family, always full of joyous little enterprises of one kind or another and very popular socially.

Tilton is not, as many suppose him, a rampant politician, having never held an office of any kind, and being a man of purely literary and artistic tastes, who prefers his closet and his library to all political conventions and caucuses. He spends most of his leisure at his house, is very fond of children, and quiet and domestic in his tastes, though he enjoys congenial society, for which his perfect good nature and fine flow of spirits, his bright conversation and abundant humor particularly qualify him. He is exceedingly genial, a great favorite in social circles, and has a long list of friends who appreciate him to the fullest.

PERRY DAVIS' PAIN KILLER.

Travelers are always liable to sudden attacks of dysentery and cholera morbus, and these occurring when absent from home are very unpleasant. PERRY DAVIS' VEGETABLE PAIN KILLER may always be relied upon in such cases. As soon as you feel the symptoms, take one teaspoonful in a gill of new milk and sugar, and a gill of hot water. Stir well together and drink hot. Repeat the dose every hour until relieved. If the pains be severe, bathe the bowels and back with the medicine, clear.

Fishermen, so often exposed to hurts by having their skin pierced with hooks and fins of fish, can be much relieved by bathing with a little Pain Killer as soon as the accident occurs, in this way the anguish is soon abated; bathe as often as once in five minutes, say three or four times, and you will seldom have any trouble. CARD.

DR. BARLOW J. SMITH'S WATER CURE AND Physiological Institute, 627 Sacramento Street, San Francisco. This is the only Regular Water Cure in San Francisco, where all curable diseases are treated without drugs. Dr. Smith was the first to establish a water cure on this coast, based upon the theory and practice of the New York Hydropathic College.

We have a truly healthful boarding place for men, women and children, and our prices are moderate.

The Physiological organs plainly indicate the diseases to which any person, male or female, is predisposed.

Put this card in your hat, and when you come to San Francisco, call on Dr. Smith. He will give you consultation and a physiological examination in regard to health. It will cost you nothing and may save you months and years of ill health and "bad luck."

Dr. Smith gives free lectures to gentlemen every Friday evening, on subjects pertaining to health, at his Physiological Hall, 627 Sacramento Street.
